Mr Steven Mosher

Steven was a pro-choice agnostic when he arrived in China in 1979, Mosher experienced a major conversion in the course of his groundbreaking study of life in a Chinese village. His eyewitness reporting on the brutalities of China's one-child policy saw him denounced by the Chinese Govt as a spy and his subsequent founding of the Population Research Institute. One of his key missions is to expose the myth of overpopulation and to spread the message that people are the world's greatest resource, one we cannot do without.

Dr Andrew Foong

Andrew works as a GP in Sydney. He has a special interest in NaproTechnology – an effective and moral form of fertility care. Andrew is also a Catholic apologist and former Catechist, being the past Coordinator of the Communications course at the Sydney Archdiocesan Seminary and teacher of Theology of the Body at the Catholic Adult Education center at Lidcombe.

Dr Deirdre Little

Deirdre is a practising GP Obstetrician and is a Visiting Medical Officer at Bellingen Hospital where she has provided intrapartum obstetric care for 27 years. Deirdre is the Bioethics Officer for the Catholic Women's League in NSW and has had articles concerning prenatal screening and testing published in the secular press.

Mr Paul Hanrahan

Paul is the Executive Director of Family Life International Australia and Sydney coordinator of the Helpers of God's Precious Infants and has helped and given support to other groups around Australia to establish and maintain a peaceful prayerful presence outside abortion mills in their locations. He has been married to his wife Chris for 27 years and they have 5 children whom they have home schooled. He has been involved in prolife activities for 18 years and is an experienced public speaker on topics relating to Life and Family.
